Dear Parents,

The 8th Grade Class Trip to Camp Pathfinder in Algonquin Park, Canada has become a CHS tradition, but just as importantly it is another way in which we develop students in alignment with the goals of the IB Middle Years Program. This year the trip is scheduled for May 30th to June 2nd 2019, pending Board of Education approval.

The cost of the trip will be $400, which includes transportation, food, lodging and all camping activities led by the experienced Camp Pathfinder Staff. We are actively fundraising to ensure all 8th grade students have the opportunity to participate in a very meaningful experience and make memories that will last a lifetime. The trip is chaperoned by parent and faculty volunteers as well as Dr. Kresse.

Schedule of payments:

November 16, 2018 – 1st deposit payment of $100/student

February 15, 2019 – 2nd payment of $300/student

We emphasize that we welcome your requests to change these scheduled payment due dates according your individual family's budgetary needs.

Each year, we benefit from the support of CHS/FMP Foundation, CHS PTSCO, the Algonquin Campership Fund, contributions from individual families, and the Zittel's Wreath Sale Fundraiser to ensure that all families can send their child on this trip regardless of family budget.

Parents, please refer to the following letter that was kindly submitted by parent chaperones from a previous year regarding the experience of the Class Trip to Camp Pathfinder.

Observations of parent chaperones – Class Trip to Camp Pathfinder

Dear Dr. Kresse and Mr. Sharratt,

I wanted to share with you the observations Greg and I made over the course of the long weekend with the CHS 8th-grade Class Trip to Camp Pathfinder in Algonquin Park. While each group rotated through the same or very similar activities, the special skills and knowledge of each counselor made each day group's focus slightly different. We understand that Warren focused a little more on the wildflowers, while our counselor, Aidan, may have emphasized history to a somewhat greater degree. Regardless, I am sure that you and your fellow teachers and administrators will find many echoes of the common core and other significant education and life-long learning outcomes in these experiences.

In terms of history, the students learned the history of logging and land use in the Park as well as the history of the First Nations peoples of the area. They learned this history in the midst of other lessons about cooking on a fire and environmental impacts. The connection with Buffalo's late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century history was made explicit, as many of Buffalo's civic elites and industrialists were involved in the founding of the Park and its early mixed use history of logging, "roughing it," hunting, and fishing. Many of the groups explored the Glen Donald Hotel ruins after canoeing there and using a compass to find some of the old cabin foundations. This hotel was a rustic destination accessible only by train and frequented by wealthy Americans, many of whom were from the Western New York area. This social and transportation history is significant and should have some fruitful comparisons with the history of the railroads and Erie and other canals that students learn.

No history of the occupation and use of the Park can help but lead to a discussion of sustainability and environmental issues. (Even the living environment at the camp – an elaborate human waste management system, composting/garbage/recycling bins at every meal for sorting waste – was a daily reminder of the human impact on the environment.) The Glen Donald site includes a garbage dump with exposed cans, old piping, pot lids, and other remainders and allowed the students to compare and contrast the new and old forms of waste management. The Park itself shows the remnants of the logging industry and the students observed these: a sunken boat left behind when a logging camp closed, the few white pines left behind by loggers sticking up above a deciduous forest, the misshapen white pine that survived the logging on Pathfinder Island. Fireside discussion included the links between logging and vulnerability to fire in the area.

Flora and fauna surrounded the students all day and night. Rare wildflowers like the lady's slipper and the red trillium grew on the island and could be seen on the excursions. Even from the bus on Highway 60 students saw a moose; they later walked through moose scat on the island and a lucky few groups saw a moose and her two calves. Many students for the first time heard the eerie call of the loon and perhaps a few heard the howl of a wolf if they had woken during the night like Greg did. One student caught her first fish – and told the tale around the fire in articulate fashion. Warblers and song birds, ducks, hawks, woodpeckers and their holes were observed and heard.

Students also learned about the geological and climatic factors that make the region unique, including the Canadian Shield, influence of glaciers, and the intersection of the deciduous and boreal forests.

Perhaps one of the loveliest moments came on the last night at camp, when students lay down on the docks to see the stars. Shooting stars, satellites, constellations, the Milky Way – there were students who had never seen the sky without ambient light. What happened after this quiet observation? Parents walked quietly past groups of assembled students and heard them pondering their smallness in the vastness of the universe, asking each other questions about worldly significance and the meaning of human life, discussing whether it's possible that there is no other planet capable of sustaining life. This was not prompted or moderated by adults; this was the spontaneous outpouring of feeling and wonderment in response to the natural world and their intimacy and trust with one another. Is that a specific learning outcome? Hard for me to say – but as a college professor I am quite certain that those students who can let themselves be moved to reflection and even shaken by the world around them make far better college learners than those who do not open their eyes and minds to these sorts of big questions.

The weekend was all about experience – experiential learning, physical activity, fun, problem solving and teamwork, embracing physical and mental challenges, being with friends and making new friends among people they've seen for years. When students were split into teams of two to make fires they were not given a lesson or instructions, just guidance with questions about what wood is good for starting a fire and what wood is good for stoking one to boil water or cook. Aidan referred to an old logger's saying that "only a fool tries to boil water on a cedar fire" and let the students figure out why. They were led through using a compass and topographical map not by a lecture, but by a guided demonstration with lots of questions about degrees and the meaning of the distance between lines on the map. They went out in teams to see if they used the compass correctly. They were given a problem to solve at the ropes course: how to get each member of the team safely across the "molten lava" using only what they were wearing. Our team came up with using a sweatshirt to snag the hanging rope and then helping each other get on and use it. As the counselor said, "no discounting," meaning accept as sincere the help, encouragement, and praise of the rest of the team – and give that support to one another for a successful outcome. The teaching style of the counselors was effective in that they made their guiding of students appear effortless, even while many steps were taken to lead the students to a conclusion and an attempt at a new task. The ropes course was a physical and psychological challenge. Many of the students had never been in a canoe yet learned how to paddle and experience the challenge of steering a canoe in a headwind. For the student canoeists to reach their destination, they must work together and communicate or the boat will veer all over the place. In a supportive and safe environment, students could challenge themselves physically and mentally by walking across a log 30 feet in the air, jumping off the top of a 20-foot pole, or scaling a climbing wall. There were abundant opportunities for learning or practicing skills – reading a map, shooting an arrow, using a compass, carrying a canoe. The ball games were fun – and turned the world upside down with campers against staff and parents, girls against boys. Lots of team strategy and support, lots of hand-eye coordination, lots of fun.

Ultimately, on the last morning the students divided tasks among themselves for a fun and raucous race. Again, they had to work together and support one another – the challenge emphasized what was part of life all weekend, like social, racial, ethnic, and gender mixing. Individuals bore responsibilities, but ultimately the team was the focus. Even dining played to this, with each table responsible for clearing and cleaning. While students did spend time with familiar friends, we saw tables, tether ball matches, spontaneous ball games of all kinds that brought the students together by interest, mixing the groups without being required to do so. The students sang and listened to others sing and play. The old-fashioned camp songs pairing campers, with rapid hand movements and much laughter, survived onto the bus ride home. From the back I could hear something about your long-legged life and the long-legged sailor and his long-legged wife.

Getting ready to leave many students said how much they were looking forward to a shower and flush toilet, but qualified those wishes by saying how badly they wanted to stay on the island. The shower was the consolation prize for leaving.

I'm sure that other parents shared some of these impressions, and may also have seen variations based on the groups to which they were assigned. It was a pleasure to work, play, learn, dine, and live with these youth for the weekend.

Yours,
Claire Schen and Greg Cherr
